

Outback

The term outback refers, generally, to inland areas, more remote semi-desert of the Australian continent.

The outback is also indicated with expressions like the red heart of Australia or the Red Centre, because of the soil rich in iron and then reddish color. For the 90%, the "Terra Australis" is still uncultivable because of arid terrain typical of the outback.

The image features a map of Australia in a dark blue color. Overlaid on the map is the Australian flag, which consists of a blue field with a white seven-pointed star in the upper left canton, a white Union Jack in the fly, and five white stars of varying sizes in the lower right. The text is overlaid on the map.

The population the Australia

Only 2% of Australians would be indigenous. The 90% is descended from Europeans, including many Irish and Italian immigrants. The 8% is of Asian descent, especially the new generation of immigrants from Southeast Asia and the Middle East.

The fauna

Australian fauna is characterized by particular species, such as the monotremes, marsupials (kangaroos, koalas and Wombats), freshwater crocodiles and salt water and the dingo.

Among the birds are the EMU, the budgies wavy, the Black Swan, the Australian Eagle etc. The country of Australia is the most poisonous snakes in the world. Rabbits are one of the major scourges for Australian agriculture, after the introduction from Britain.
